HB RULES

The Home Beautiful office is buzzing with the news that our very own editor Wendy Moore is to be a judge on the upcoming home makeover show, House Rules, airing soon on Channel 7. The show, hosted by Johanna Griggs, pitches six teams of own-home renovators against each other in a state-versus-state contest. It promises jaw-dropping room makeovers, brilliant ideas and plenty of fun (with a bit of drama thrown in) along the way. Make a date with the sofa and join Wendy, Johanna, architect Joe Snell, builder Chester Drife and HB favourite, interior designer Carolyn Burns-McCrave, as well as the teams, as they renovate their way to a life-changing prize.

NEWS FLASH!

We're thrilled to announce the highly anticipated Australian opening of four famed US design stores, Williams Sonoma, West Elm, Pottery Barn and Pottery Barn Kids, which are all throwing open their doors this month at the Exchange Building in Sydney's Bondi Junction. Expect on-trend homewares, timeless furniture, and all the kitchen bits and pieces you can dream of at affordable prices. Visit williams-sonoma.com, westelm.com and potterybarn.com for a sneak peek and to buy online.

nesting instinct

Australian textiles company Armadillo & Co have treated their popular Nest Weave collection of rugs to a vibrant facelift. Inspired by classic awning stripes, the new design is available in six cheery colours and, like all Armadillo & Co wares, is made by Indian artisans under Fair Trade working practices. Rugs from $560; visit armadillo-co.com to view the range.

give or take

Ladies, leave this page somewhere your husband will see it... The Goods Tube is a new online initiative by Sydney-based architect Joe Snell and his wife, who imports Scandinavian homewares. They've taken the hard work out of gift-buying by packaging together tempting trios of treats, all neatly presented in their soon-to-be iconic tubes. The duo's eye for good design is clear, with gifts carefully chosen from international designers and local artisans, including imported elderflower liqueur, locally made gourmet chocolate slabs and designer Tom Dixon candles. Perfect for Mother's Day (hint, hint). Visit thegoodstube.com.
